A full-page illustration of a bullfight is shown on the left side of the page. The illustration depicts a bullfight in progress, with a bull in the center and several matadors around it. The scene is set in a large arena with a crowd of spectators in the background. The illustration is signed 'J. L. 1970' in the bottom right corner.

At the beginning of the bullfight, the bull is brought into the arena. The matadors then begin to dance around the bull, trying to lure it into a position where they can strike it. The bull is very powerful and can move very quickly. The matadors are very skilled and can avoid the bull's attacks. The bullfight is a very dangerous sport and has been banned in many countries. However, it is still popular in some parts of the world, particularly in Spain.
